What are polycrystalline solar panels?

Polycrystalline or multicrystalline solar panels are solar panels that consist of several crystals of silicon in a single PV cell. Several fragments of silicon are melted together to form the wafers of polycrystalline solar panels. These solar panels absorb energy from the sun and convert it into electricity.

How are monocrystalline solar panels made?

Monocrystalline solar panels are made from one continuous crystal structure, which is where they get their name. They're manufactured using the Czochralski process to create a large, single-crystal silicon ingot. The silicon ingot is then sliced into thin wafers to make solar cells.
