

Chile Uninterruptible Power Supply Vehicle BESS

Overview

This article delves into the current state of BESS in Chile, exploring its role in addressing curtailment challenges, the historical context of battery implementation, and future prospects for both standalone and co-located energy storage solutions. Will Chile be able to develop energy storage projects in 2024?

In 2022, Chile passed an energy storage and electromobility bill, which made stand-alone storage projects profitable, but the market is still expecting new rules on capacity payment for storage projects, which are to be approved in 2024. Chile has also put in place an auction procedure to award public land for the development of BESS projects.

Are battery energy storage systems a viable alternative for Chilean power producers?

With transmission lines at overcapacity and permitting delays slowing the development of new grid infrastructure, battery energy storage systems (BESS) have surged as a profitable alternative for Chilean power producers.

Does Chile have a Bess auction procedure?

Chile has also put in place an auction procedure to award public land for the development of BESS projects. Moreover, the country's Congress has launched discussions on amending Chile's energy transition bill to include large-scale BESS auctions.

How can Chile keep up with the changing energy demand landscape?

Chile is exploring a variety of solutions to keep abreast of the changing energy demand landscape ranging from BESS to innovative projects using CO₂. In March 2024, BESS Coya, the largest battery-based energy storage system in Latin America, started operations.
