

Do solar panels need maintenance

Overview

Do solar panels need maintenance?

Solar panels generally require very little maintenance in order to function, so yes, you can usually just let them be. The only thing most solar panels need is a periodic light cleaning to make sure dirt, leaves, and other debris aren't obstructing the sun's rays.

Are solar panels low-maintenance?

Solar panels are low-maintenance, but a little care goes a long way. Regular servicing and cleaning will help extend your system's lifespan. Watching for shading, pests, and inverter faults can prevent bigger problems. Maintenance costs are modest compared to the long-term savings on energy bills.

How often should a solar panel be cleaned?

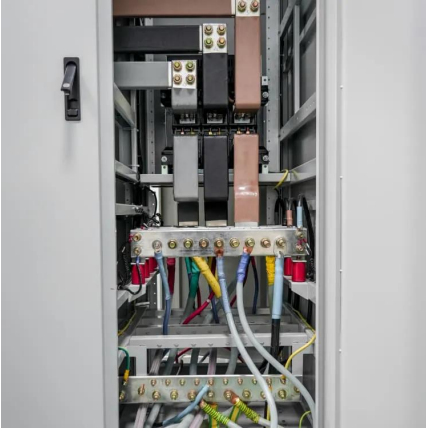

Solar panels require very little maintenance, especially if they are on a tilt, as rain can wash away any debris. It is generally recommended that you perform solar panel cleaning between two and four times per year. Take extreme care when cleaning. Clean from the ground, as climbing around on your roof can be dangerous.

How often should solar panels be inspected?

The Microgeneration Certification Scheme (MCS) recommends having an 'intermediate maintenance' inspection of your solar panels from a certified contractor every 10 years, and a 'full maintenance' inspection every 15 years. However, you can avoid the need for external solar inspections by getting yourself a solar panel maintenance support package.
