Do toads need a heater?

Toads are comfortable at room temperature and in ambient daylight, so you don't need to purchase any heaters or lamps for your toad. Keep the tank out of direct sunlight, because too much sun can hurt your toad. If you want to catch more than 1 toad to keep as a pet, you'll need a bigger tank.

How do you feed a toad in a tank?

Purchase some live worms and crickets from your local pet store and carefully lower them into your toad's tank to feed it. You can also feed your toad insects you find in nature. Only feed your toad insects that will be able to easily fit in its mouth; otherwise, it might choke while trying to eat.

Do toads drink a lot of water?

While toads don't drink as much water as a lot of other common pets, they do need to spend a lot of the day soaking in water to stay hydrated. Keep a large dish or pool of non-chlorinated water in the tank that your toad can sit in. Make sure it's not taller than the height of your toad, or else it may drown.

How big should a toad tank be?

Keep your toad in a 15 US gal (57 L) aquarium tank. A toad needs a good amount of space to hop around when it's kept as a pet. Purchase a 15 US gal (57 L) tank from a pet store or online to keep your toad in. The tank should be at least 24 inches (61 cm) long, 12 inches (30 cm) tall and 12 inches (30 cm) wide to keep your toad happy.
